Monongahela on mend

Mayor Bob Kepics said the past few days have been difficult to endure.

By JEFF OLIVER
Staff Writer
joliver@tribweb.com

MONONGAHELA – "We will rebound. We will rebuild."

Those words by Mayor Bob Kepics stood for the resolve the city has in light of two recent traumatic events.

On Sunday, a costly fire struck a century-old, downtown building and two adjoining businesses. Two days earlier, the city police department suffered a black eye after one of its own was accused of hindering drug investigations in the community.

"This has been a tough, tough week for me and for the city," Kepics said at a Wednesday council meeting. "But we will be OK."

At the meeting, the city declared a disaster emergency related to the early morning fire that hit Vocelli Pizza at 222 W. Main St. and damaged two neighboring buildings.

The pizza shop fire was so devastating that the building is being razed. A state police fire marshal has said the cause of the blaze might never be known because the building was too dangerous to enter after the fire.

Because of the unstable structure, the 200 block of West Main Street was closed and will remain closed until the fire scene is cleaned up.

"We had to close the street because we felt that the building could collapse at any time," Kepics said.

Kepics said the building that housed the pizza shop was built in 1890.

Also damaged in the fire were businesses at 218 W. Main St.

Library sharing impasse victim

Without money from the state, Monessen will stop delivery service Oct. 1.

By JENNIFER REEGER
For The Valley Independent
jreeger@tribweb.com

At least once a week, Tom Smith logs onto Murrysville Community Library's Web site from his home, picks out some books and reserves them with a click of a mouse.

An e-mail will let him know that his books are ready before Smith, 70, drives several miles from his Murrysville home to his local library to pick them up.

"I have no idea when I pick up the book whether it came from my home library in Murrysville or from Latrobe or Delmont or Greensburg," said Smith, who uses Westmoreland County Federated Library System's Westmoreland Information Network to borrow books.

"... Without this wonderful capability, you are limited to the number of copies your local library has on its shelf."

The state budget impasse, however, will force the system to end the delivery of materials from one library to another, beginning Oct. 1.

The service was trimmed from 15 delivery runs to eight per week on Aug. 31, said Peggy Tseng, interim director and district administrator for Monessen Public Library and District Center.

Monessen receives money from the state to run the inter-library loan and delivery program for the county system. Tseng said the system received about $550,000 in state funding last year.

Since July, the Monessen library has been paying for the program on its own.

"We are running out of cash pretty quick," Tseng said. "We are counting our money every day, checking our bank account, seeing what bills we don't need to pay."

Tseng said Monessen held on as long as it could without state help.

"This is the service people want," Tseng said. "The libraries have been telling us that the delivery service and the inter-library loan have been the things people want the most."

Although 20 of Westmoreland County's 24 libraries are on the computer system, patrons at all libraries in Westmoreland and Fayette counties benefit from the delivery service, said Denise Sticha, director of the Westmoreland County Federated Library System.

"On any given day, we have roughly 2,500 items in transit," Sticha said.

Library patrons in Fayette County or at libraries in Westmoreland not on the computer network go through their library to request materials to be delivered, Sticha said. Books that are borrowed in Allegheny or Washington counties can be returned to libraries in Westmoreland or Fayette – and the delivery service will get them back where they belong, Sticha said.

NFL parties in Pittsburgh as Steelers, Titans clash

Get ready for some goose bumps.

The National Football League and NBC worked for nearly five months formulating a special introduction to tonight's season-opening game between the Steelers and the Tennessee Titans.

When fans gather at Heinz Field or in front of television sets at 8:30, they'll hear:

Ladies and gentlemen, let's welcome America to the home of the six-time Super Bowl-champion Pittsburgh Steelers!

"That will ignite a pyro show all over the city," said Fred Gaudelli, producer of NBC's night-time football telecasts. "We're talking major fireworks."

As fireworks blast from a barge on the Allegheny River, from PPG Tower and other Downtown sites, the scoreboard will show footage of key plays from last year's Super Bowl victory over the Arizona Cardinals.

Ex-Steelers – including Lynn Swann, Rocky Bleier and Franco Harris – will be shown sporting their championship rings, and a montage will appear of the franchise's three title-winning coaches – Chuck Noll, Bill Cowher and Mike Tomlin.

"The show will end up with a major pyro display in the stadium and the unveiling of the championship banner," Gaudelli said. "And it will culminate with the team running onto the field."

Sounds good to Steelers linebacker James Farrior.

"That stadium is going to be unbelievable," Farrior said.

More than 65,000 fans are expected to pack Heinz Field. Harry Connick Jr. is scheduled to sing the national anthem, and about 40 family members who lost loved ones on United Airlines Flight 93 in Somerset County during the terrorist attacks of 9/11 will be on the field for a moment of remembrance.

Former Steelers star and newly inducted Pro Football Hall of Famer Rod Woodson will handle the ceremonial coin toss.

"I think everyone in this city is amped up."

LINEBACKER LAMARR WOODLEY

Just having the Titans in town might be cause enough for fireworks. Last season, the Titans pounded the Steelers, 31-14, in a regular-season game in Nashville and had the audacity to stomp on some Terrible Towels while they were at it.

"I think everyone in this city is amped up," Steelers linebacker LaMarr Woodley said. "We've been waiting to get the season back on – and definitely against Tennessee,

Washington Twp. garbage vote delayed

Residents and business owners trashed the refuse collection proposal.

By JEFF PIKULSKY
Staff Writer
jpikulsky@tribweb.com

WASHINGTON TOWNSHIP – The township supervisors Wednesday decided to rework a refuse collection ordinance after residents and business owners said they feared it would create a monopoly.

Solicitor Don McCue said the ordinance would make a yet-to-be chosen company responsible for collecting all residential and commercial refuse collection in the township.

McCue said the supervisors would negotiate monthly rates and the fees for rental containers.

Some business owners in attendance objected, saying they would lose the right to obtain individual contracts based on the volume of refuse collected from their businesses – as they had in the past.

When several residents asked how much they would have to pay for rental containers, McCue said all residents would have to pay the negotiated fee established by the supervisors.

"That's a very bad idea," resident Mike Zadrozny said. "You're going to look into one business? If they have bad service, then you can't get rid of them. What are you going to gain by bidding it like that?"

"You'd be able to keep the traffic off the streets," McCue said. "If you have one waste collector, you'll have one vehicle going through the community with regularity that's

'Grass' always greener when economy slumps

Federal officials have destroyed marijuana valued at $12 billion.

By The Associated Press

BARBOURVILLE, Ky. – Machete-wielding police officers have hacked their way through billions of dollars worth of marijuana in the country's top pot-growing states to stave off a bumper crop sprouting in the tough economy.

The number of plants seized has jumped this year in California, the nation's top marijuana-growing state, while seizures continue to rise in Washington after nearly doubling the previous year.

Growers in a three-state region of central Appalachia also appear to have reversed a decline in pot growth over the last two years.

Officers in those areas, the nation's biggest hotbeds for marijuana production, have chopped down plants with a combined street value of around $12 billion in the first eight months of this year.

While national numbers aren't yet available this year, officers around the country increased their haul from 7 million plants in 2007 to 8 million in 2008.

"A lot of that, we theorize, is the economy," said Ed Shemelya, head of marijuana eradication for the Office of Drug Control Policy's Appalachian High Intensity Drug Trafficking Area.

"Places in east Tennessee, eastern Kentucky and West Virginia are probably feeling the recession a lot more severely than the rest of the country and have probably been in that condition a lot longer than the rest of the country."

Library (FROM PAGE ONE)

Individual libraries had been receiving delivery service six, five or three days a week, Sticha said. This month, the service has been reduced to three or two days a week.

Sticha said the delivery service probably would have to run on a reduced schedule, depending on funding levels dedicated to libraries when the budget finally passes.

"You really can't plan for the future because you don't know what the future will be," Sticha said, adding that some budget proposals call for slashing library funding by 50 percent. "It's just such an unknown, so it makes planning very difficult."

"We have every indication, and they're telling us that there will be a cut," Tseng said.

Smith said he probably will continue to borrow materials in Murrysville, rather than driving to other libraries.

"The impasse is really an embarrassment to the state, and the impact of the budget impasse for me is far less significant than for people who need day care," he said.

"But this is just another example of what's happening while they're twiddling their thumbs in Harrisburg."

specified, probably weekly, in the contract ... if you leave it up to everybody, then you could have several contractors coming in to pick up roll-off boxes and several contractors coming in to pick up dumpsters. That piles up your roads."

McCue said the ordinance would also make lower monthly rates possible.

Supervisor Joanne Latkanich said the contract should only involve residential customers and that business owners should be free to cut their own deals.

"They're going to hold you hostage, and you have no choice," she said of having one collector.

Latkanich said the cost of rental containers should not be negotiated with only one company.

The supervisors agreed to redraft the ordinance.

In an unrelated matter, the supervisors approved a 25 mph speed limit for Koslasky and Victoria streets.

Supervisor Charles Yusko said those roads – and others in the area – previously had no posted speed limits.

He said a resident must submit a written request to the supervisors before a speed limit is posted.

The supervisors might ban dogs from the community ball field.

Supervisor Jamie Miller said she has received several complaints that owners there are not cleaning up after their dogs.

Tim Naulty, Washington Township Youth Association president, said there is also a problem with large dogs running loose near small children.

The supervisors plan to draft a communitywide littering ordinance that would impose fines in addition to state fines.

a team that beat us last year and kind of disrespected us a little bit by stepping on the towel."

Kickoff will happen about two hours after the Penguins are scheduled to meet President Obama in the White House to commemorate their Stanley Cup championship.

Back at Point State Park, an NFL-themed party has raged all week. The league's Kickoff Festival will culminate with a free concert featuring Tim McGraw and The Black Eyed Peas.

NFL spokesman Brian McCarthy said the league expects as many as 50,000 people to attend the concert.

The park will open for admission at 4 p.m., when the NFL will show "America's Game: 2008 Pittsburgh Steelers," an NFL Network production chronicling the team's Super Bowl season.

McGraw will perform for an hour at about 5:30 p.m., followed by 60 minutes with The Black Eyed Peas at 6:40. The two acts will perform again at 8 as part of a live show produced by NBC and the NFL Network.

Every year, the Super Bowl champion is invited to open on Thursday night at home with an NBC/NFL celebration.

NBC executives anticipate a huge viewing audience. When the Steelers opened defense of their Super Bowl title in 2006 against the Miami Dolphins, 19.3 million viewers tuned in, a record for a Thursday night game.

Steelers cornerback Ike Taylor likes basking in that kind of limelight.

"Man, everybody's going to be watching," Taylor said. "First game of the year, you got your family watching, your friends watching and people who don't even care watching just 'cause."

In each of their six Super Bowl-winning seasons, the Steelers opened with a victory, outscoring opponents by an average margin of 31-9.

The NBC telecast will be historic because it won't feature iconic analyst John Madden, who retired after last season. He was replaced by former Cincinnati Bengals wide receiver Cris Collinsworth, who will team with play-by-play man Al Michaels.

"I'm really excited about this," Collinsworth said. "This is an incredible opportunity for me; it's a chance to work with the very best in the business across the board.

"... The people I talk with around the country just want me to tell John thanks. They want me to say how much they appreciate what he meant to them and what he meant to their lives. He was part of the family."

"Nobody likes to lose buildings ... ," Kepics said. "But Monongahela lost a whole city block once, and we rebuilt. And we will do so again."

Kepics was talking about a stretch of buildings on West Main Street between Third and Fourth streets that were leveled by a fire in the early 1970s.

Council praised the work of city firefighters and police officers for their efforts during the fire.

Firefighter Rusty Polonoli praised business owners and residents in the neighborhood for their help and donations to firefighters who were battling the blaze.

"Everybody comes together in a time of need," Kepics said.

Meanwhile, council terminated George Langan as a police officer and city employee.

Langan, an 18-year member of the force, was arrested by Washington County District Attorney Steve Toprani and the Washington County Drug Task Force on Sept. 4.

Langan is being held in the Washington County Correctional Facility as he faces 42 charges stemming from his alleged role in drug trafficking and hindering drug investigations in the city.

Before last night's meeting, a hearing was held between the city and Langan, who was represented by attorney Stephen Greenberg and Teamsters Local Union 205 representative William E. Lickert Jr.

As a result of that hearing, the city terminated Langan's employment.

Solicitor Brad Bassi read a resolution on the matter and said it was found Langan violated the terms and conditions of his employment "being that there is found to be neglect and violations of his assigned official duties, disobedience of orders or conduct unbecoming an officer."

Kepics called the situation involving Langan "a sad day for the city."

Police Chief Brian Tempest said the force must begin "restoring public trust in the police department."

However, Councilman Tom Caudill was quick to point out that with the increased number of drug arrests that Tempest and other officers have made this year, faith in the department is still strong.

Fatal crash victim identified

A Washington County man was killed and two other people injured Wednesday in a three-vehicle crash on Route 837 near Finleyville.

Roger Walters, 48, of Slovan, was killed in the crash that occurred at 6 a.m. in Union Township, Washington County Coroner S. Timothy Warco said.

Walters was ejected from the wreckage of his truck and pronounced dead at the scene, Warco said.

Walters was driving north about three car lengths behind a Ford F-250 pickup truck driven by Steven Coffield, 44, of Aleppo, when an oncoming NAPA Auto Parts delivery truck driven by Nicholas Jackson, 31, of Carrollton, Ohio, crossed into their path, state police in Belle Vernon said.

The delivery truck first sideswiped Coffield's pickup and continued south into the right front and side of Walters' truck, police said.

State police said neither Coffield nor Jackson were injured.

About 120 gallons of diesel fuel leaked from the NAPA Auto Parts delivery truck, according to police.

The Washington County hazardous materials team was called to the scene to clean it up.

The accident remains under investigation, police said.

First Niagra has computer woes

Computers were down at four of First Niagara Bank's 57 branches early Wednesday, interrupting business for customers of the area's newest bank on its second day of operation.

Three of the offices - Downtown (Oliver Avenue), and Monongahela and California - experienced computer glitches for the first half hour or so, said Frank Polino, executive vice president leading the conversion from National City Bank.

The glitch meant customers could not withdraw more than $400 from accounts because tellers were temporarily unable to verify online the balances. The cause of the problem was not clear.

Deposits and automated teller transactions were not affected, he said.

The fourth branch affected - Finleyville - was not able to go back online until about noon yesterday, said Polino.

First Niagara acquired 57 National City branches from PNC Financial Services Group, a $54.1 million deal that closed last Friday.

MONONGAHELA – The city's newest police officer now has his own police vest.

Beny, the 3-year-old German Shepard police dog for the city's K-9 unit, received his vest during Wednesday's meeting of city council.

The vest was purchased through the combined efforts of the Monongahela, New Eagle and Finleyville fire companies.

K-9 officer Larry Maraldo said that the vest was specially made for Beny and took six-to-eight weeks to make.

Also during the meeting, Beny was presented with a trauma kit and a treat basket by members of the Monongahela Area Revitalization Corporation.

"Beny has quickly become the most popular officer in the department," said police Chief Brian Tempest.

"Beny has been a great asset to the city of Monongahela and he will do more," said Mayor Bob Kepics.

"The vest is similar to the ones that the other officers wear and now Beny will have the same protection, as he deserves," Tempest said.

Kepics thanked the three fire companies for their contribution to aid in Beny's future safety.

In a related development, it was announced that Maraldo and Beny will be deployed to Pittsburgh during the upcoming G-20 Summit.

Kepics said Maraldo and Beny will work six days during the summit, pulling 12-to-16 hour shifts each day.

"They have some long days ahead of them during the summit," Kepics said.

Pittsburgh has promised to reimburse the city for all expenses incurred through the use of Maraldo and Beny.

Monessen school chief due new pact

By STACY WOLFORD
Staff Writer
swolford@tribweb.com

MONESSEN - A new contract is in the works for Monessen School District Superintendent Dr. Cynthia Chelen.

The school board voted this week to extend Chelen's contract "no less than three years and no more than five years."

Chelen's current five-year contract expires Feb. 10. Board President Cheryl Galilei said state school code requires school boards to either extend or approve a new contract 150 days prior to the expiration of the current deal.

Galilei said the board still is working on the new contract.

Director Norbert Vesely cast the lone vote against extending Chelen's contract at Wednesday's meeting.

"I'm not voting against Dr. Chelen, but any salary increases. I don't feel it's fair to the taxpayers. The senior citizens are in dire straits," Vesely said.

Chelen has been with the district for 37 years, working her way up as a teacher to an administrator.

In other business, the board heard from members of the Monessen Soccer Booster organization who are still not happy with the decision to move home games to 4 p.m. The games had started at 4:45 p.m. in past years.

Director Roberta Bergstedt, chairwoman of the athletic committee, said she was told WPIAL rules require at least one administrator at all home games. She said the staff is not paid extra to stay over for games. She said there are also students who stay after-school for games.

"I regret we had to make this choice," Bergstedt said.

Boosters president Laura Borne said some administrators don't stay for entire games.

Parent Kelly Halinka said a WPIAL official told her district personnel only have to be present at playoff games. She said a PIAA official said that a district representative has to be at all games - home and away.

"The rule clearly states if a principal is not available, a full-time teacher can be appointed on their behalf. My question is: which way is it going to be?" Halinka asked.

The booster parents continued to maintain that starting games at 4 p.m. will hurt their main fundraiser, which is the concession stand. Halinka also said the soccer games have never been called to a halt due to it getting dark outside, which was another reason the district gave for starting the games earlier.

Bergstedt said the parents need to meet with athletic director John Sacco and she agreed to arrange a meeting.

Gene & Boots sponsored sports, community events

Ron PAGLIA

The story has been told many times.

It's the one about how Gene & Boots grew from humble beginnings in Charleroi to become one of the region's top producers of quality homemade chocolates and other specialty items.

That heritage spans more than 70 years and has satisfied the sweet tooths of thousands of customers along the way.

But Gene & Boots also made its mark as a strong supporter of community programs and athletic teams over the years. To wit:

■ There are numerous references in the archives of The Charleroi Mail calling attention to Gene & Boots as a prime sponsor of such events as the annual community picnic at Kennywood, Old Home Week and the annual Fourth of July fireworks displays in Charleroi.

■ The firm also sponsored the coveted Gene & Boots Trophy awarded to the top player in the Magic City Bridge Club in Charleroi. A story in the Dec. 12, 1961, edition of The Valley Independent emphasized that point by reporting that Dr. William Trezise, of Fayette City, clinched the trophy in the last game of the bridge series by completing a total of 21 points. Mrs. Alice Fiscus, of Charleroi, had 17 points to finish second in the competition at the Charleroi Elks Club.

■ The candymaker also sponsored many athletic teams, including those in football, basketball, baseball, softball and mushball.

A story in The Charleroi Mail recounted how Gene & Boots defeated the highly touted Petrucci's Grocers to win the City Mushball League championship. It referred to the G&B crew as the Candymen. Another story called them the Nut House Gang.

In the early 1960s, Gene & Boots competed in the Upper Mon Valley Slo-Pitch Softball League with Charleroi Dairy Queen, Guder's, Fairhope, Pricedale, Bentleyville, Naomi, Burnham, Lynnwood and Webster.

One of the best independent basketball teams to carry the Gene & Boots banner was the 1936 club that won the Senior Class championship in the annual National Gold Ball Tournament in Waynesburg.

The Charleroi Mail reported on April 6, 1936, that "a valiant and courageous basketball team, playing under the banner of Gene and Boots Nut Shop, was being acclaimed today as champions of the National Gold Ball Tournament held at Waynesburg over the weekend. The locals were the youngest team entered in the Senior Class, and also the best."

Composed of players from Moose Beer and Wolf's, "the Nut Shoppers passed and shot their way into the finals by defeating the Republic Oil team of Waynesburg, 42-35, in a semifinal game Saturday afternoon, and went on to defeat a highly favored Jabours team comprised mostly of Waynesburg College players in the evening finals by a score of 34-27," The Mail reported.

Rudy Debnar and Hal Parks were the leading scorers for Gene & Boots in the semifinal game with 12 and 10 points, respectively. In the championship game, Debnar and Jack Stevenson paced the victory with 10 points apiece.

The Mail story said John Moussiaux of Gene & Boots was "by far the outstanding player" in the championship game. "He was here, there and everywhere and topped his performance with a beautiful overhead shot from the corner that had the large crowd gasping and cheering at the same time," The Mail recalled.

In recognition of their outstanding play throughout the tournament, Parks and Jack Stevenson were awarded positions on the all-tournament team and were given beautiful gold medals.

Rudy Debnar gained a place on the second all-tourney team and was awarded a silver medal.

Jack Stevenson was selected as the outstanding individual player of the tournament. He received a medal and was made eligible for the national award of the Gold Ball Federation.

Harry Turbett, manager of the Gene & Boots team, received a gold medal for his coaching and also accepted the "beautiful team trophy standing seventeen inches in height" on behalf of the sponsor.

All members of the championship team received gold basketballs in recognition of their winning the tournament.

The awards were on display at Gene & Boots Nut Shop through Easter Sunday.

Others on the championship team were Chuck McKenna, Howdy Sowden, Paul Debnar and Joe Moussiaux.

Ed Bouldin, a lanky center, was the star of the Jabours and was the leading individual scorer in the tournament. His teammates included guys with the surnames of Youle, McKay, Emerick and Everhart.

For the uninitiated, Gene & Boots was founded by Gene Madigan and "Boots" Rush in 1930. They were graduates of Connellsville

TOLD YOU HAVE CATARACTS? TIME FOR A SECOND OPINION!
A diagnosis of cataracts is a common condition as we age. However, it is not an immediate requirement for surgery. If you have been told that surgery is needed now, consider a second opinion. Often times, many live for months and perhaps years with no change in their quality of life.
Pittsburgh EYE Institute
Dr. Thomas Findlan
Everyone at some point in time, as they grow older will develop cataracts. Cataracts are nothing more than a normal age related process of your natural lens which normally rests behind the colored portion of your eye. This lens acts just like a lens of a camera bringing images into a fine focus. A cataract can be the reason sharp objects become blurred, bright colors become dull or night driving is more difficult. It may also be why reading glasses or bifocals no longer seem effective. Most people over 60 have some level of cataracts and almost everyone over 50 loses their ability to read and see comfortably up close. The extent and severity of the cataract can vary but will progressively continue to get worse over time. The rate at which cataracts develop can also vary between individuals. Most types of cataracts are slow in development and can take years to affect ones vision while less common types of cataracts develop more rapidly and affect ones vision quickly.
Surgery when needed is one of the safest and most effective surgical procedures performed in the United States. However, surgery no matter how successful does not come without risk. This is why it is imperative to undergo this procedure with a board certified, fellowship trained cataract surgeon, and only when the symptoms mentioned above are apparent.
Remember, if you are not comfortable proceeding with surgery, consider a second opinion. Often times, cataracts can be watched as surgery is an elective decision and rarely is an emergency.
Call the Pittsburgh Eye Institute today for your cataract second opinion!

Monessen ready to host annual Heritage Festival

Traditional three-day event kicks off Friday.

By STACY WOLFORD
Staff Writer
swolford@tribweb.com

MONESSEN - The sights and smells of ethnic food and traditions will fill Parente Boulevard this weekend during the city's annual festival.

The Monessen Cultural Heritage Festival will be held Friday, Saturday and Sunday featuring ethnic food, music and other entertainment.

Festival hours are 4 to 8 p.m. Friday; 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. Saturday; and 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday.

Parente Boulevard will close at 8 a.m. Friday to prepare for the festival and re-open when clean-up is finished Monday morning.

Hosted by the Greater Monessen Chamber of Commerce, the festival has been a staple in the city for more than 40 years.

Mayor Anthony Petaccia said the festival has long been a tradition for the city and he hopes residents come out to support it.

"It celebrates the ethnic traditions and it helps mold the community together," Petaccia said.

The Monessen Volunteer Fire Department No. 1 auxiliary is sponsoring a car cruise from 5 to 8 p.m. Friday and a car show from 2 to 6 p.m. Saturday.

The Greater Monessen Historical Society will have a booth at the festival where old high school yearbooks and albums of photos featuring the late mayor Hugo Parente will be on display.

The museum will be closed Friday and Saturday during the festival, but ethnic cookbooks and historic photo CDs will be on sale at the festival.

Chamber President Gary Boatman said this year's festival will be like a "homecoming" for well known Mon Valley deejay Jim the D.J. Dudas.

Dudas will his spin favorite oldies from 5 to 8 p.m. Friday at the festival.

A 1966 Monessen High School graduate, Dudas recently celebrated his 25th year in radio broadcasting. His popular oldies show, "Mon Valley Memories," can still be heard on WJPA (95.3 FM and 1450 AM,) based in Washington, Pa.

Saturday will feature performances by the Gate of Heaven Mime group, Light of the World gospel choir and Jerry Jumba and his orchestra playing a mix of Slavic and Charpatho-Russian music.

On Sunday, Monessen resident Monica Kramer will present a gospel concert at 1:30 p.m. The Wisdom band will also perform.

And, as usual, the festival will offer plenty of ethnic food, such as gyros, haluski, kielbasa, sweet potato pie, pulled pork and favorites such as pizza, tacos, ribs and wings.

Organization wants to end Westmoreland geese hunts

Group seeks alternate ways to control geese population.

By CHRIS FOREMAN
For The Valley Independent
cforeman@tribweb.com

An animal-advocacy group again is requesting that officials for Westmoreland County parks choose alternatives to hunting to control geese populations.

In particular, Voices For Animals of Western Pennsylvania contends that North Huntingdon officials should erect fencing around the lake perimeter in Indian Lake Park to restrict park visitors' contact with geese.

The state season for Canada geese hunting began Sept. 1 and runs through Sept. 25.

North Huntingdon has offered some limited morning times for hunting in Indian Lake Park in recent years, including the first hunt of the season Wednesday, while the park was closed to the public.

The Pennsylvania Game Commission released data this summer that the 2009 population of geese was estimated at just less than 290,000, which is slightly higher than the six-year average of 278,787.

Lindsay Joyce, a spokeswoman for the Pittsburgh-based advocacy group, said the hunts are a "quick fix" that pander to the interests of the hunting community.

She said the hunts are "unethical" because geese are tame animals that become an easy target for hunters because they become accustomed to visitors, who sometimes feed them.

"It is high time for the county to address this issue responsibly, ethically and intelligently by pursuing the non-lethal control methods that have already been used effectively in other local communities much larger in size than these county parks," Joyce said.

The New Jersey-based organization, Geese Police Inc., which has a Western Pennsylvania franchise, uses border collies as intimidators to scare geese away from golf courses, businesses, cemeteries and parks.

"They have to exist in the world. God put them here for a reason," said Mike Allen, a Canonsburg resident who is helping to sell the local franchise after its owner, Paul Dunn, died last year.

"There's a huge demand for it, and this is truly the most humane way of dealing with it, and the safest way of dealing with it," Allen said.

Municipal officials and park managers across the region have maintained that the hunts are an appropriate method for dispersing geese.

House Speaker Nancy Pelosi, D-Calif., unveils a plaque to honor victims of Flight 93 at the U.S. Capitol on Wednesday.

United Flight 93 passengers, crew are honored at Capitol

A large bronze plaque paying tribute to the heroes of that ill-fated flight was unveiled during Wednesday ceremony.

By KIMBERLY HEFLING
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — It was a day of thank yous and thoughts of what could've been, as family members of the passengers and crew of United Flight 93 visited Capitol Hill on Wednesday to honor those who perished aboard that plane eight years ago.

Two days before the anniversary of the 9/11 terrorist attacks, the families were on hand for the unveiling of a large bronze plaque at the Capitol that pays tribute to the individuals who died when their plane crashed in a Pennsylvania field in the midst of the attacks. Their sacrifice "not only saved countless lives, but may have saved the U.S. Capitol from destruction," the plaque says.

Family members, many wearing buttons with their loved ones' names or holding children born after the attacks, listened solemnly as the ill-fated passengers' names were called out.

"I hope that you will visit frequently and that it will be a comfort to you," House Speaker Nancy Pelosi said. Other speakers recalled the fear and chaos that gripped the Capitol on the day of the 2001 attacks.

The ceremony held special meaning for Paula Nacke Jacobs, 46, of Berlin, Md., who said Wednesday would've been the 50th birthday of her brother, passenger Louis "Joey" Nacke.

"I'm glad that this plaque is being dedicated today, and not only for the passengers and crew of Flight 93, but for everybody," Jacobs said. "This really shows the strength of the human heart. At the end of the day, we stand for our country."

Ben Wainio of Catonsville, Md., whose 27-year-old daughter Honor Elizabeth Wainio died on board, said the magnitude of the Sept. 11 attacks made it easier in many ways to grieve.

"So often people just go on with their life, and they forget, and I don't want them to forget Elizabeth or any of the other passengers on that plane," Wainio said. "I want them to be there forever."

Flight 93 was traveling from Newark, N.J., to San Francisco when hijackers took it over with the likely goal of crashing it into the White House or Capitol. The official 9/11 Commission report said the hijackers crashed the plane as passengers tried to wrest control of the cockpit.

The plane crashed near Shanksville in Somerset County.

Before Wednesday's ceremony, several family members met with Interior Secretary Ken Salazar, who reiterated his agency's commitment to push forward with plans to build a National Park Service memorial at the crash site, which is slated to open on the 10th anniversary of the attacks. The family also met with the National Park Foundation director, Neil Mulholland.

They also stopped at the Smithsonian's National Museum of American History to view an exhibit on American wars that includes a section on the 9/11 crash sites.

As she left the museum, Sarah Wainio, 22, recalled receiving the news of her sister's death. She was 14 and came home to find news reporters in her yard and FBI agents inside her house. She since had her sister's first name tattooed on her wrist.

"We are doing our best to still maintain ourselves in a very, very unique situation. There's no book on how to survive this aftermath, so we're writing it as we go," Sarah Wainio said.

Shuttle aims for homecoming tonight

But adverse weather conditions may delay scheduled landing.

By MARCIA DUNN
AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — Shuttle Discovery's astronauts were aiming for a landing tonight to wrap up their successful space station delivery mission, but late summer storms threatened to keep them up an extra day or two.

But Mission Control said Wednesday that "the weather will pose a challenge" for bringing Discovery home.

The forecast called for a chance of thunderstorms tonight. Conditions were expected to worsen Friday and remain poor Saturday.

"The weather in Florida this time of year is always a little iffy," Discovery's commander, Rick Sturckow, said from orbit. "If things aren't good, the worst that can come out of it is that we have another day in space, which is a great deal."

In orbit since Aug. 29, Discovery has enough supplies to last until Sunday.

If the shuttle cannot return to Florida tonight, NASA will consider landing it in California, but not until Friday at the earliest.

Astronaut Timothy Kopra is headed home after nearly two months at the international space station. He said the flight wasn't too long by any stretch. He should have spent an extra month at the outpost, but his ride up ended up being delayed because of shuttle problems.

Buzz Lightyear, by comparison, spent 15 months aboard the space station.

The 12-inch action figure rocketed into "infinity and beyond" aboard Discovery in May 2008.

Once Walt Disney World gets the toy back, it will be feted at a tickertape parade early next month.

THE WORLD BRIEFLY

Fed survey shows recession ending

WASHINGTON (AP) — The recession is ending and the economy is finally growing again.

That's the message implicit in the Federal Reserve's latest survey of businesses around the country, which found economic activity stabilizing or improving in most regions.

Economists warn the expansion is fragile and will have staying power only if consumers start spending more money. Rising unemployment that keeps Americans cautious could make for a plodding recovery in the months ahead.

The Labor Department was expected to report later today the number of new jobless claims filed last week, which could indicate whether the incipient recovery is slowing the pace of layoffs.

Wall Street economists expect that first-time claims for unemployment insurance benefits fell to a seasonally adjusted 560,000 from 570,000 the previous week, according to a survey by Thomson Reuters.

Job openings fall to 9-year low

WASHINGTON (AP) — Job openings fell to the lowest level in nine years in July, according to a Labor Department report Wednesday, as businesses remain reluctant to hire despite signs the economy is improving.

The department's Job Openings and Labor Turnover survey, or JOLTS report, found that businesses and government advertised 2.4 million open positions on the last day in July, down from 2.5 million in June. That's also the fewest openings since the department began compiling the data in December 2000.

Still, jobs are being added in some sectors, as companies seek more health care, technology and child care workers.

The report underscores the tough competition that jobless Americans face. With 14.5 million unemployed people in July and only 2.4 million openings, that means there were six unemployed people, on average, for every job opening.

Mortgage relief program growing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Obama administration's $50 billion mortgage relief program is finally picking up speed after a sluggish and disappointing start: Nearly early one in five eligible homeowners have been offered help so far.

The "Making Home Affordable" plan was launched with great fanfare in March. As of last month, lenders had sent out more than 571,000 offers to reduce borrowers' monthly payments, the Treasury Department said Wednesday.

That's 19 percent of the nearly 3 million homeowners eligible for the program.

'PENNSYLVANIA CASH 5'

HARRISBURG (AP) — Today's "Pennsylvania Cash 5" jackpot will be worth at least $525,000 because no player matched the five winning numbers drawn in Wednesday's game.

Lottery officials said 97 players matched four numbers and won $306.50 each; 3,896 players matched three numbers and won $12.50 each; and 52,198 players matched two numbers and won $1 each.

The winning numbers in Wednesday evening's drawing of the Pennsylvania Lottery's "Cash 5" game were: 01-02-28-31-32

Illegals and health care

A LOOPHOLE in the America's Affordable Health Choices Act of 2009 (HR 3200) could accommodate millions of illegal aliens and swallow billions of taxpayer dollars. That's unacceptable.

A new Center for Immigration Studies (cis.org) analysis notes that the bill says illegals wouldn't be eligible for taxpayer-funded health insurance "affordability credits." But, it points out, there's nothing in the bill to enforce that.

Just as bad, House committees' rejection of requirements to verify the identities of applicants claiming U.S. birth and to check applicants' immigration status via the Systematic Alien Verification for Entitlements system, already used by more than 70 "means-tested" federal benefits programs, suggests Congress really isn't interested in safeguards.

Based on a 2007 estimate of 6.6 million uninsured illegals who could end up receiving affordability credits, CIS presents a worst-case scenario: All those illegals getting those credits would cost taxpayers $30.5 billion annually.

But whatever the number, the principle is the same: Illegals have no right to U.S. taxpayer dollars.

HR 3200's toothless "ban" on affordability credits, combined with rejection of safeguards, smacks of deliberate deceit by a Congress more interested in paying lip service to that principle than in abiding by it.

And that's one more reason why Americans rightly oppose this health care "reform" proposal.

Rage against Obama's propaganda machine

Kathryn LOPEZ

"Choose you this day whom ye will serve." That may be from the Bible's Book of Joshua, but it could be from a book of Barack Obama. Is that hyperbole? Only slightly, unfortunately.

In U.S. Department of Education materials surrounding the first national presidential address to public-school students, children were encouraged to write letters to themselves about what they can do to help the president.

After some genuine and vociferous backlash, the Obama administration took back some of these recommendations for recruiting students to the cause that is Barack Obama.

But the pullback came around the same time that an elementary school in Utah was scheduled to show students a video parade of celebrities pledging allegiance to Obama, and to the liberalism for which he stands. In this video, various tabloid types seeking to "Be the Change" vow to "smile more" and "love more." Other plans include "to be the voice for those who have no voice"; and to not always flush the toilet, for the sake of the planet; "To pledge allegiance to the funk, of the United Funk of Funkadelica"; and, most audaciously, "To free one million people from slavery in the next five years."

Yes, it was a bit of a mix.

The culmination of the whole mess, however, was very clear; to "pledge to be of service to Barack Obama ... to be a servant of our president and all mankind."

Rational people would argue that the head of a republican government serves the people who elected him, not the other way around. But reason does not live in an era of vague feelings.

The video was produced and directed by noted thespian and liberal scold Demi Moore and her husband Ashton Kutcher, who recently told Reuters: "There's an assumption that this one man is going to take on his new job full-time and somehow wave a magic wand of change, and I don't believe that to be true. I think that we have to be the leaders, and that's not celebrities — I think that we as citizens have to be leaders of the movement that we want to create."

Evidently, in order to get people to be the change, you have to get to them early, when they're in public school. "We're all in this together," one celeb declared. Would that have only been the case when George W. Bush was president! Instead, examples of celebrity service during that era took the form of actress Cameron Diaz (who makes an appearance in the Moore pledge video) declaring on the Oprah Winfrey show during the 2004 election: "If you think that rape should be legal, then don't vote. But if you think that you have a right to your body, and you have a right to say what happens to you and fight off that danger of losing that, then you should vote."

What the heck is she talking about? Abortion, obviously, once you cut through all the craziness. It's safe to say Diaz wasn't into presidential servitude back then.

The school indoctrination stories have been airing at the same time as revelations, on the right-leaning Web site Big Hollywood, of a government body organizing an artistic propaganda machine. Film producer Patrick Courrielche was invited by the National Endowment for the Arts to join a conference call sponsored by the NEA, the White House Office of Public Engagement, and United We Serve, the organization created by Obama to promote volunteer service. The stated purpose of the call was "to help lay a new foundation for growth, focusing on core areas of the recovery agenda — health care, energy and environment, safety and security, education, community renewal."

A few days after the call, Courrielche noticed that the starry-eyed Rock the Vote campaign, whose "mission is to engage and build the political power of young people in order to achieve progressive change in our country," sent out an e-mail declaring: "We can't stand by and listen to lies and deceit coming from those who are against reforming a broken system...Young people demand health care now." Unsurprisingly, Rock the Vote is in favor of a public component to said health care.

A representative for Rock the Vote was on the NEA conference call. He picked up the orders.

These have been tough times for President Obama. With a majority in Congress, and an adamant imperative that his health-care reform will should be done, he had to let summer recess in Washington come and go without his commands fulfilled. You can understand wanting to use every resource available to him.

Aristotle said that art completes what nature cannot bring to a finish. Perhaps Obama's NEA might say that art completes what democracy isn't obedient enough carry out.

The problem is that, if the National Endowment for the Arts exists — which some of us think has always been regrettable in a nation that has more than enough private resources and enthusiasm to support the arts without need of government support — it is not at the political service of the president. It's not meant to be an extension of his communications office.

The video, the Department of "Political" Education directives, the secular crusading ... these are alarm bells. An emptiness exists, created by a tyrannical reign of elite secularism.

And self-declared servants of Obama may not realize this yet, but it's a void that ultimately can't be filled by hollow rhetoric and bureaucratic disasters.

We are a culture that understands art as an elevation, not as a campaign tactic. And there is a higher authority than the president of the United States whom you're still free to pledge service to if you so choose.

Residents victimized by sewage project

To the Editor:

One year ago, the local township started to install main sewage in the area of my address. The roads were dug up, pipe work and catch basins were installed.

The work went on for approximately six months. The road was repaved and work was supposedly completed. Ever since they started this work, I have had my basement flooded with 12 inches of water on four occasions and many other times, with 1 to 4 inches of water due to the township and the contractors' incompetence and bad work.

They keep passing the blame on to one another and doing nothing about the problem. For six months now, nothing has been done to correct the problem by anyone.

I am talking to a lawyer now to try to get all the damage I have repaired: ruined water tank, walls, new furnace, sewage in the basement, ruined furniture and paint. My dog was swimming around and paddling in sewage on the first floor where it rained.

I am totally disgusted at this and want something done about it.

Health reform opponents not driven by hate

YOUR OPINION

To the Editor:

I take exception to Mr. Jacobs writing "So to those who oppose health care reform I pose this question: Why do you hate your uninsured fellows Americans so much?" ("Many Americans need help," Sept. 3).

This has nothing to do with hating anyone. It is about taking away our freedoms, especially our freedom to choose, and in fact is giving more control to "Big Brother" (the government) over our lives. What programs have you ever seen the government take over that have not cost the American taxpayer more money, employed far too many people (Department of Energy, for example) and had more problems than any private sector company? Compare UPS and FedEx to our post office as a perfect example.

After retiring from the Department of Welfare, Mr. Jacobs said he knows that there are people who "fall through the cracks." I agree these are the people we should be looking to help with health care.

As an American taxpayer (his real boss) I think he should have been trying to find ways to do this for his fellow uninsured Americans while he was still employed! In short, he was part of the problem and now he feels guilty because he was taking a paycheck every month and received his eventual retirement while not fixing problems that needed fixed. This never happens in small businesses because if they are inefficient or wasteful, they do not survive!

I say why destroy the existing system if most of the people are satisfied with their current health care plans? Of course most of us would like our plans to be less expensive, but if you will recall, when the HMOs first started, the idea put forth was this was going to save everyone money.

Our existing health care system is the envy of the world. All you have to do is look at where the world looks for exceptional health care. It is in the good old USA! And yes, we need some reforms. For example, we need tort reform so the doctors don't have to pay ungodly rates to buy malpractice insurance, and we need insurance companies to be able to compete nationally instead of being restricted to specific states.

In addition, the government could propose legislation giving tax credits to individuals to help pay for their medical care and to provide financial relief for catastrophic health care situations. We could incentive companies to create health care plans such as Whole Foods and its very honorable CEO John Mackey has done. Ideas such as this will save costs, ensure our freedoms and ultimately make the entire system even better.

People must understand that this Health Care-2009 will not be free! Everyone will have to pay. I worked in England for three years doing payroll. Each person had a percentage of his pay taken out for health care and the company he worked for had to pay double that amount. That means that every employer, large or small will have to pay into health care. With all the taxes the small businessman has to pay now, if he has an employee, he will end up having to close his business or work alone. The small business person is also someone who "falls through the cracks" unless he has a certain number of employees he can't get into a cost effective insurance plan.

We need to bring about changes that make health care affordable, accessible and available to the millions of Americans that want health care insurance, but either can't afford it or are denied for reasons such as a pre-existing condition. In order to do this, we do not need the government to run it or ruin what we already have.

To address these and other fundamental reforms that are necessary to improve our health care system, Rep. John Fleming, Louisiana, is an original cosponsor of the Empowering Patients First Act.

This bill preserves the important decisions made between an individual physician and the patient and improves the quality of care offered across the country.

This bill contains all the essential elements of good health care reform including expanding private insurance to all Americans who want it, removing preexisting illnesses, portability, subsidies to the working poor, access to excellent primary and specialty care and lawsuit reform. All this is accomplished without a government takeover, gutting Medicare, long lines, bureaucrats interfering in the sacred doctor-patient relationship and it is budget neutral.

HEALTH CARE DEBATE

Obama willing to deep-six public option

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Barack Obama has never been wedded to a government-run health insurance plan.

The will-he-or-won't-he obsession over how hard Obama might fight to include the so-called public option in a health care reform package has been — let's be honest — mostly just noise.

Obama settled that Washington parlor game in his speech to Congress and a television-watching public Wednesday night. The president praised the public option but called it only a means to the end of providing more competition, not crucial on its own.

"We should remain open to other ideas that accomplish our ultimate goal," he said.

It was vintage Obama, the political realist who knows it's not worth going to the mat for something when the votes aren't going to be there. It was Obama the conciliator, using soaring rhetoric to try to get warring sides to come together around common sense. And it was Obama the ever-willing negotiator, unfazed by abandoning many specifics on the road to a larger goal.

But did he do enough to put to rest that one contentious issue — which became so divisive in the larger debate over his drive to revamp the nation's health care system that it threatened to derail the entire effort?

The White House worked to assuage progressive activists, labor representatives and others most invested in a public option. Officials noted Obama would make a strong case on the idea's behalf.

Obama aides told liberal supporters there is a chance the climate might be more amenable to adding a public option in the later stages of the process.

In the days ahead, there will be grumbling from progressives, sure, some of it angry. Still, liberal lawmakers know the idea is largely dead.

Mark McClellan, a health policy expert at The Brookings Institution who ran Medicare in the Bush administration, said Obama hit it right.

An Analysis

"He made clear there is room for negotiation on the public plan, and I think that's where he needs to be in terms of keeping support from the Democratic caucus and leaving the door open for some Republicans," he said.

Conservatives, however, made immediately clear they don't plan to abandon one of their best arguments against Obama's approach anytime soon.

"Families understand that a costly government-run plan will force them to pay more and get less," said Brad Dayspring, spokesman for Rep. Eric Cantor, R-Va., in a statement released just minutes after Obama stopped talking.

Some of the recent suspense over Obama's stance, of course, is the result of genuine consternation among the idea's true believers.

To their way of thinking, creating a government-run health insurance plan as an option in a marketplace dominated, especially in certain regions of the country, by only one or two insurance companies would go a long way toward keeping private insurers honest and driving down costs.

Groups on the left have been demanding in increasingly desperate-sounding terms that a public option be in any final bill. Otherwise, liberal lawmakers say, they'll vote no on a reform package.

Really?

Hardly. The demands are about influencing Obama and their leadership. But the threats are largely empty — and everyone knows it. Most liberal lawmakers are unlikely to deny a Democratic president his top priority, or their party a potent re-election tool.

On the other side, many conservatives genuinely believe a behemoth with government backing would be impossible for any private company to compete against.

The logical end result, they fear, is the dying off of private insurers and more and more Americans shoved into government-run health care until that's all that's left. This even though Obama insists the government would provide only startup money and that the plan would have to sustain itself afterward from premiums just like everybody else.

Like Democrats, Republicans have played politics with the issue.

Many seem poised to vote against any bill of major proportions that ends up making its way through Congress, given that it is likely to be mostly Democratic in origin. So their posturing about the evils of the public option is largely irrelevant, but an easy way to sow broader skepticism — "a handy excuse for the usual Washington ideological battles," as Obama put it.

Obama first endorsed the public option idea during the presidential campaign, after it was embraced by Democratic rival John Edwards and then the other powerhouse in the Democratic primaries, Hillary Rodham Clinton.

And Obama kept talking about it since because there was little reason for him not to.

Obama's disapproval rating on issue rises to 52 percent

Survey was released before the president's nationally televised address to Congress.

By ALAN FRAM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Public disapproval of President Barack Obama's handling of health care has leaped to 52 percent, according to Associated Press-GfK poll that underscores the country's glowering mood as the White House made a renewed pitch for an overhaul.

Just 42 percent approve of the president's work on the high-profile health issue. The survey was released Wednesday before his nationally televised effort to persuade Congress and voters to back his drive to reshape the nation's $2.5 trillion-a-year medical system.

Spotlighting how Obama lost ground this summer, his latest approval figures on health were essentially reversed since July, when 50 percent approved of his health effort and just 43 percent disapproved.

The poll was taken over five days just before Obama's speech to Congress. That speech reflected Obama's determination to push ahead despite growing obstacles.

"I will not waste time with those who have made the calculation that it's better politics to kill this plan than to improve it," Obama said Wednesday night.

"I won't stand by while the special interests use the same old tactics to keep things exactly the way they are. If you misrepresent what's in the plan, we'll call you out. And I will not accept the status quo as a solution."

The poll illustrates how difficult recent weeks have been for a president who, besides tackling health care, has been battling to end a devastatingly deep recession.

Fifty percent approve and 49 percent disapprove of the overall job he is doing as president, compared to July, when those approving his performance clearly outnumbered those who were unhappy with it, 55 percent to 42 percent.

The slipping figures were an ominous sign for Obama, who by year's end wants Congress to send him legislation lowering health costs while covering millions of uninsured Americans.

Besides near unanimous opposition from Republicans, the president's proposal has divided lawmakers from his own party, with liberals battling for a far-reaching plan that would include optional government-run insurance, and moderates demanding a scaled-down version without public coverage.

The poll found that discontent with Obama's health care effort is not isolated to Republicans. While nearly nine in 10 from the GOP disapproved of his handling of the issue, so did about six in 10 independents and two in 10 Democrats.

"How in the world can anybody look at this and evaluate it and see if it makes effective change?" Kelly Hoots, 35, a pharmacist and independent from Weaverville, N.C., said of the health care legislation. "Who knows what's in it?"

Further spotlighting the opposition Obama is encountering, 49 percent in the AP-GfK poll said they oppose the health overhaul plans being considered by Congress, compared to just 34 percent who favor them.

People are about evenly split over what lawmakers should do next on health care: About four in 10 say they should keep trying to pass a bill this year while about the same number say they should start over again.

Significantly, though, only about two in 10 say the health care system should be left as is, a positive sign for Obama.

"It's about time" for expanded health coverage, said Randy Yarborough, 56, a retired cabinetmaker and Democrat from Fort Lauderdale, Fla. "Everybody ought to have it. Anybody who says we can't afford it or we shouldn't have government health care, you need to wake up."

There is a clear public desire for a bipartisan approach on health care. Eight in 10 say it's important that any plan that passes Congress have the support of both parties, with Democrats, Republicans and independents all saying so by roughly that proportion.

Two-thirds say if Obama and congressional Democrats can't win support from Republicans to pass a bill this year, they should keep trying until they get it.

Obama's marks are also declining on the economy, with 52 percent saying they disapprove of how he's handled that issue.

Just 46 percent disapproved in a July AP-GfK poll, and 35 percent disapproved in April.

About half disapprove of his handling of taxes, some of which may rise to help finance his health overhaul, and of unemployment, which has been on the rise.

And 56 percent dislike his handling of the budget deficit, which has skyrocketed under the costs of the financial bailouts and a recession that has caused federal revenues to sink.

While 77 percent say health care is important to them, 92 percent said the same about the economy, more than any other issue in the AP-GfK poll.

Big Ben rejects settlement offer

By The Associated Press

CARSON CITY, Nev. — The attorney for Pittsburgh Steelers quarterback Ben Roethlisberger on Wednesday rejected a settlement offer by a Nevada woman who claims the Super Bowl champion sexually assaulted her at a Lake Tahoe hotel-casino.

The rejection was in response to a letter, filed last week as part of a motion from Cal Dunlap, the woman's Reno attorney, that said she would be willing to settle the civil matter against Roethlisberger if he admits to raping her, apologizes and gives $100,000 to the Committee to Aid Abused Women, a non-profit agency in Reno that helps victims of domestic violence.

In a written statement, Roethlisberger attorney David Cornwell called the woman's offer "bizarre" and an "insult to women who have legitimately suffered from sexual misconduct."

Last month, they demanded she drop the lawsuit and write a letter of apology to the NFL star.

In return, Roethlisberger would release both the woman and Dunlap from any legal liability stemming from the "conspiracy to extort and defame" him.

Those demands have been rejected by the woman, Dunlap said in his letter. It added that her settlement offer was made to negate claims by the quarterback's attorneys that she filed her suit to get money from him.

Dunlap said the woman is a sexual assault victim who "was violated in every sense of the term."

Dunlap refused further comment when contacted Wednesday.

Cornwell countered that the woman was given the option for a "graceful exit."

"We will continue to press our defenses and claims and pursue our application for sanctions," he said.

In other developments, the case in Washoe District Court has been reassigned to another judge, the third since the case was filed.

District Judge Brent Adams will consider pending motions on whether the case should be moved to Douglas County.

Picking area football winners

Taking a look at this weekend's area football games after starting out 8-0:

MONESSEN AT CLAIRTON

It's been a long time since the Greyhounds made the trip to Bear country. Monessen's last visit to Clairton was in1986 as Eastern Conference rivals with the Greyhounds going home a 12-7 loser. Monessen isn't catching the defending WPIAL Class A champs and state's pre-season top-ranked team at a good time considering the highly touted Bears were stunned at Laurel, 15-8, last week. The Bears didn't help themselves with 150 yards in penalties.

Kevin Weatherspoon, Clairton's star wideout who's headed to Pitt, was on the sidelines for most of the contest with a sore hip. Tim Bukowski, an All-Eastern Conference linebacker for the Greyhounds and former teammate of Monessen coach Andy Pacak, is in his fourth season as Clairton's offensive coordinator. Last year, Clairton routed Moneessen twice, 44-0 and 47-0, with the second defeat in the playoffs. Go with Clairton by two touchdowns.

BVA AT SOUTHMORELAND

Southmoreland's return to Class AAA in 2008 was a nightmare with the Scotties going 0-9 and losing by an average of 36 points. One of the defeats was a 49-17 spanking by the Leps at James Weir Stadium. Southmoreland is in a 10-game losing skid including a season opening 48-15 loss at Franklin Regional. Last year, BVA's two speedsters, Cory Williams and Matt Green, burned the Scots for five touchdowns. Enough said? The Leps roll by five touchdowns.

EAST ALLEGHENY AT CHARLEROI

The Cougars haven't won a home opener since a 25-7 victory over Monessen in 2005. A year ago, the Wildcats turned a 7-6 first quarter lead into a 45-15 rout with 38 unanswered points. Monte Ashby ran for 113 yards for the Wildcats with East Allegheny's defense limiting Charleroi to five first downs. The Wildcats are coming off a 45-13 loss to Jeannette in their Interstate Conference opener. The lone highlight was Scott Croft's 87-yard kick return that gave the Wildcats a short-lived 7-6 lead. Charleroi will honor its newest Hall of Famers: Art Artis, Kevin Lee, Phil Hughes, Gary Pipik, John Verkleeren and Steve Stepanian and its 1959 WPIAL Class AA football champs. Go with East Allegheny by eight points.

RINGGOLD AT ALBERT GALLATIN

Former conference rivals have met eight times in the last nine years with Ringgold winning seven of them, including the last five. Coached for the second year by Bill Elias, the Colonials opened the season with a 41-2 Saturday afternoon romp at Class A Wilkinsburg. Junior Grayling Sanders ran for 95 yards and quarterback Cody Peebles completed eight of 13 passes for 104 yards and two touchdowns. The Rams outscored the Colonials, 78-6, in their last two meetings, both at Joe Montana Stadium. The last time the Rams visited AG in 2006, the Rams came home a 27-14 winner. Ringgold's Lloyd Price picks up his first coaching win by 10 points.

LAUREL HIGHLANDS AT ELIZABETH FORWARD

Elizabeth's Garry Cathell picked up his 100th win with last year's 42-7 romp at Laurel Highlands. The Mustangs move on the arm of Carmen Congelio, who threw for 113 yards in the Mustangs' 45-17 loss at Belle Vernon Area. No one can remember the last time the Mustangs beat a Big 7 Conference team. Go with Elizabeth by three touchdowns.

CHARTIERS VALLEY AT YOUGH

The Cougars face another tough Big 7 Conference team in the Colts. Chartiers Valley boasts one of the WPIAL's premier sophomores in quarterback Wayne Capers. The son of the former Pittsburgh Steeler receiver in 1983-84, Capers threw for 209 yards and two touchdowns and ran 48 and 5 yards for scores in the Colts' last-minute 28-24 win at West Allegheny. The Colts are ranked fourth in the WPIAL's Class AAA. Enough said? Chartiers Valley by two touchdowns.

CALIFORNIA AT SERRA

The Trojans make their first visit ever to McKeesport. Serra is coming off a 27-20 upset of North Catholic. The Eagles feature one of Class A's better quarterbacks in Rob Heatherington, who threw for 168 yards and ran for 63 yards and a pair of touchdowns against North Catholic. Last year, Heatherington's older brother, T.J., quarterbacked the Eagles to a 30-8 win. In a rerun, Serra by 22 points.

GEIBEL AT BENTWORTH

Bet quarterback Ben Gregg and the Bearcats are looking forward to this one. Geibel is coming off a 44-28 loss to Avella that ended the WPIAL's longest losing skid at 27. The last time the Gators played in Ellsworth in 2000 as a Tri-County South rival, Geibel went home a 25-20 winner. It was the only close game for the Bearcats, who went winless that season and lost their other seven games by an average of 37 points. Go with Bentworth by four touchdowns.

FRAZIER AT MAPLETOWN

Last year, Frazier snapped a three-game losing skid to the Maples with a 40-24 victory. The Commodores will have to worry about Mapletown's passing tandem of quarterback Cory Minnick to Jarrett Porterfield. In the 41-33 loss to Bentworth, Minnick threw for 240 yards and four touchdowns to Porterfield, who ended with 10 receptions for 190 yards. Minnick is also a threat to run with 120 yards against the Bearcats. In a close one, the pick is Frazier by two points.

CAL U AT WEST CHESTER

This is a rematch of last year's PSAC championship game and the Golden Rams' home opener. No. 21 West Chester is coming off a 35-0 loss at Division I Delaware after routing Lock Haven, 43-0. California dropped out of the top 25 with its last-minute 17-10 defeat to No. 5 Bloomsburg. California is trying to avoid its first 0-3 start since 1991. California gets the nod by six points.

Revenge of the towel?

Steelers hope to avenge the indignity their symbol received last year.

By ALAN ROBINSON
AP Sports Writer

PITTSBURGH — The stomping their Terrible Towel took on the Tennessee Titans' sideline last December was nothing compared to the trampling the Pittsburgh Steelers took on the field.

The Titans were Steelers-like in the way they manhandled Pittsburgh up front, hurried Ben Roethlisberger into mistakes, and were more physical. Tennessee's 31-14 victory on Dec. 21 was Pittsburgh's only loss in its final 10 games, and it made fans of both teams eager for the rematch.

It never took place — until now.

The Titans and Steelers, teams that always stay in character amid the constant changes that swirl around them in the NFL, open the new season tonight by playing the game that was anticipated in January.

The Steelers cooperated — they won the Super Bowl — but the Titans were derailed by Baltimore in the divisional round, and the Ravens then lost to Pittsburgh. The Titans started 10-0, finished 13-3 and have spent the last seven-plus months pondering how their season — and perhaps the Super Bowl — got away from them.

To the Steelers, the most indelible image of that Titans rout was running back LenDale White and several teammates tromping on Terrible Towels. The sideline stomp has been replayed countless times in Pittsburgh, where the towel is as much a source of civic pride as it is a symbol of the six-time Super Bowl-winning team it represents.

In Pittsburgh, one doesn't dare tread on the Terrible Towel, but White said he would gladly do it again if he gets the chance.

"If it happens to be there, I'm going to stomp all over that, man,"

Another section win for BVA

Michelle Miele scores three times in 6-0 victory.

By BILL HUGHES

ROSTRAVER TOWNSHIP — New season, same section result for Belle Vernon Area.

The Lady Leps (2-1, 1-0) opened their Class AAA Section 6 schedule doing the same this they have done for their previous 45 section contests.

They won.

Michelle Miele recorded a hat trick for BVA while Cailtin Pasternak added two goals and Marla Sasko one to lead the Lady Leps to a 6-0 shutout over Laurel Highlands Wednesday.

Despite the win, BVA coach Paul Sasko was not overly enthused with what he saw.

"We played well, but we have not put it together yet," he said. "We are going to have to work hard to improve and play more as a team if we want to have a successful season."

Miele started the scoring at the 7:03 mark by putting in a rebound off a Pasternak shot.

A little less than three minutes later, Pasternak scored off of an assist from Sasko, and with 12:58 left in the half, Miele scored her second goal off of an assist from Kylee Heck to give BVA a 3-0 halftime lead.

Miele opened the second half scoring when she rebounded another Pasternak shot at 11:03.

Sasko added a rocket from 30 yards out and Pasternak scored the Leps' last goal with 15:01 remaining on a breakaway.

BVA outshot Laurel Highlands 33-7.

Junior goalkeeper Lindsay Lash made seven saves, including two late breakaways.

Sasko praised the play of defenders Lexi Henry, Danielle Weight, Megan Kelly and Katie Lewis.

"The defense did a decent job," he said. "With a young keeper in net, the better the defense plays, the easier Lindsay's job will be."

The road ahead will not be easy for BVA.

The Lady Leps host Pine Richland in an exhibition contest Saturday and go to section rival Southmoreland Monday.

"We have to play better and with more intensity than we did tonight if we want to beat those teams," Sasko said. "We will find out very soon."

Wannstedt warns players about the dangers of a MAC road game.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pitt doesn't want to fall into the MAC trap again.

This wouldn't seem difficult for a BCS team that's only three spots out of this week's AP Top 25: a road game against a Mid-American Conference school. Tell that to Pitt, which lost at Toledo (2003) and Ohio (2005) the last two times it went on the road to play MAC teams.

The memories of those losses remain: The opposing coach calling it one of the biggest wins in school history. The fans tearing down the goal posts. And the time it took to recover afterward from the loss in confidence that can follow such a defeat.

Several Pitt players remember what it felt like to lose to Ohio, and they don't want to experience such a game Saturday at Buffalo (1-0), which trailed the Panthers by one point going into the fourth quarter of a 27-16 loss last season.

That game came a week after Pitt lost to another MAC school, Bowling Green — only that one was at home in one of the biggest upset losses in school history.

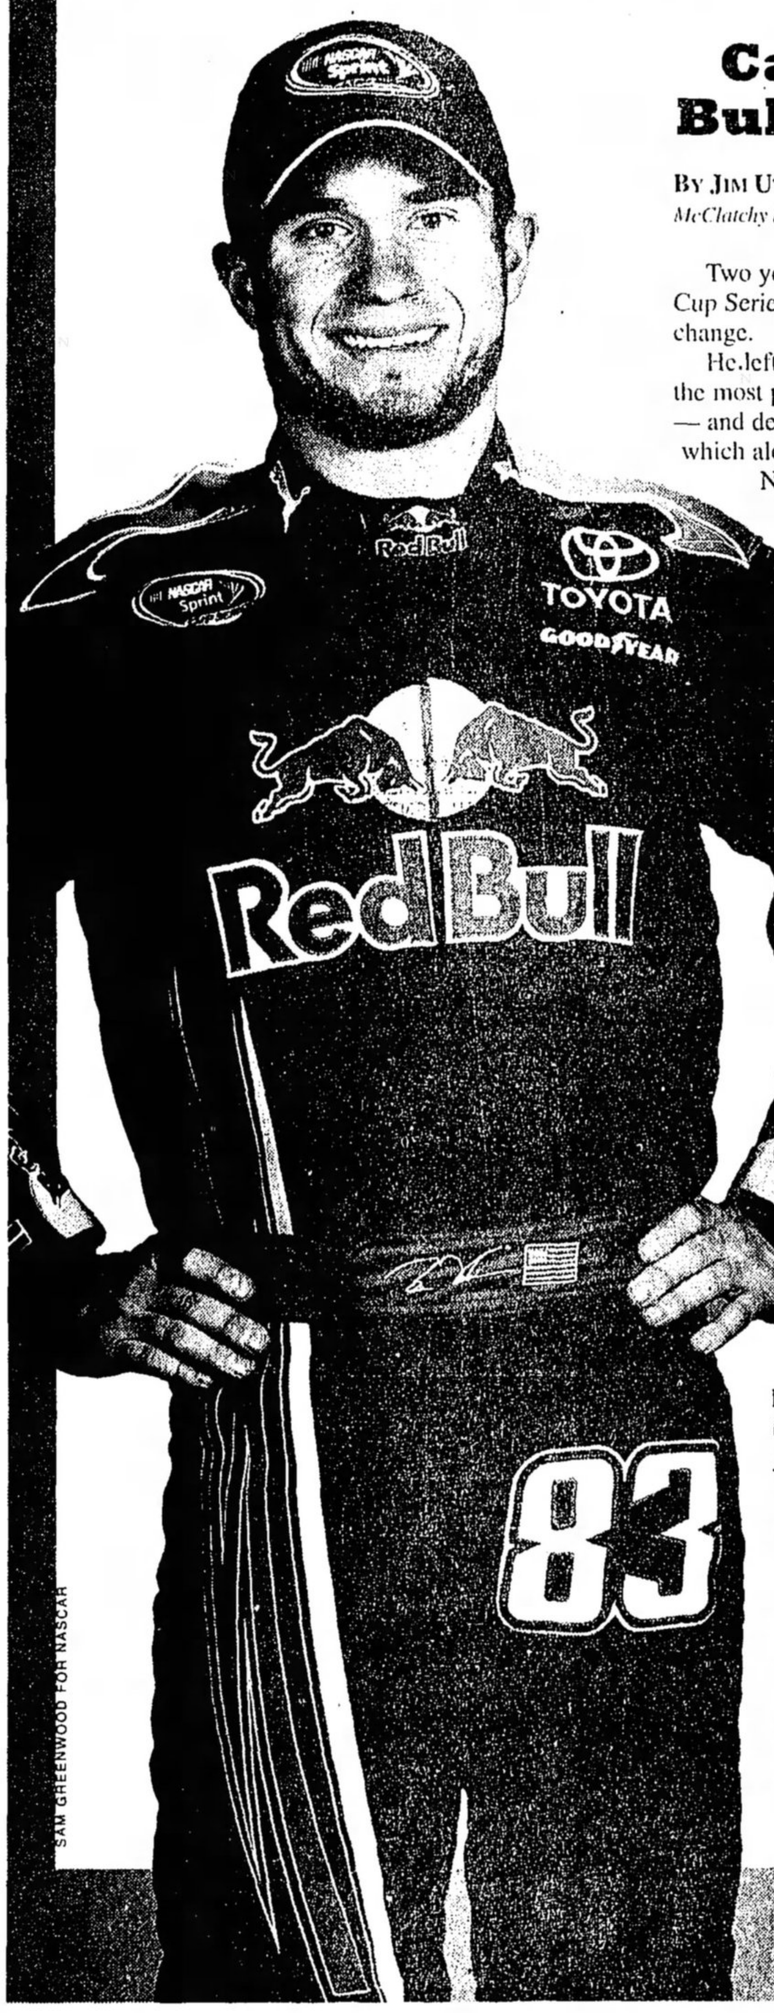
Can Brian Vickers and Red Bull Racing make the Chase?



SAM GREENWOOD FOR NASCAR

By Jim Utter
McClatchy Newspapers

Two years ago, Brian Vickers' Sprint Cup Series career had taken a drastic change.

He left Hendrick Motorsports — one of the most powerful NASCAR organizations — and decided to join Red Bull Racing, which along with Toyota was just joining NASCAR's elite series.

It was a bold move, but also an unpredictable one.

The brand new organization struggled making races in its first season, and even Vickers — who hadn't had previous problems qualifying in his career — made just 23 of the 36 races that season.

Although much has already changed for Vickers and Red Bull, the 25-year-old driver and his fledgling organization have the chance to take an even bigger step this weekend.

Entering Saturday night's Chevy Rock & Roll 400 at Richmond (Va.) International Raceway, Vickers trails 12th-place Matt Kenseth by just 20 points. The Top 12 drivers in the series standings after the race qualify for the Chase for the Sprint Cup.

Red Bull's participation in the championship hunt should easily qualify for the biggest surprise so far this season.

"We were the first employees that walked in the shop. There weren't tools, much less race cars. We had to start from scratch," Vickers said of his debut with Red Bull Racing. "The fact we built what we have in this amount of time is impressive.

"I'm proud of what Red Bull has accomplished, and Toyota. Brand-new manufacturer, as well. That being said, there were good resources, a lot of very smart, driven people. That was the potential that I've always seen in the team.

"It's satisfying to finally see that realized."

However, if Vickers had a choice, Richmond may not be the best track on which to rest his championship hopes.

Granted, he need not win the race to get in the Chase, but it's more than likely a solid finish will be required. In his 10 previous races at the 3/4-mile track, he has twice won the pole but owns a single top-10 finish — an eighth in his visit to RIR in 2004.

"I like Richmond. I enjoy racing there. But I'd like to have the average finish I have at some (other) tracks," Vickers said. "Richmond is not a bad track for us. We need to go there and repeat the same thing there on Friday, which is get pole, then get the race package to work.

"We were good on the short runs (in May), but we were bad on the long runs. We think we know why that is. We think we know how to fix it. We've gotten a lot better since then."

That's certainly true.

Since his 15th place finish at Richmond in the spring, Vickers has added a victory at Michigan (the second of his career) and three top-five and eight top-10s.

While Vickers' Red Bull teammate, Scott Speed, has struggled in his rookie season in the series, Vickers and crew chief Ryan Pemberton have been able to establish some much needed consistency — a trademark of any championship team.

"In all, I'm proud of the team, proud of where we are right now, proud of the accomplishments we've done, that we've accomplished this year," Vickers said.

"Have we made mistakes? Of course, we made mistakes. But we did the best we could at the time and that's all you can ask for. I think we've grown, learned a lot, done well."

Atlanta is the only race Kahne's win really settled

By Jim Utter
McClatchy Newspapers

Kasey Kahne scored a popular victory at a suddenly-popular race weekend at Atlanta Motor Speedway.

Kevin Harvick came up short in his quest to end his 95-race winless streak but his weekend performance sparked hints of his resurgence.

Yet when the dust settled late Sunday night after Kahne had secured his win in the Pep Boys 500, how had the race to secure a spot in the 12-driver Chase for the Sprint Cup changed?

The bottom line: Not a lot.

The same drivers who held the top 12 positions in the series standings were still there after the race, although the margins and some positions changed.

The driver in the Top 12 most seriously in danger of falling out with only Saturday's race at Richmond, Va., left — Matt Kenseth — still remains so, while those with the best chance to replace him if he does — Brian Vickers and Kyle Busch — are still in the hunt.

That pretty much produces a virtual winner-takes-all finale before the start of the championship chase.

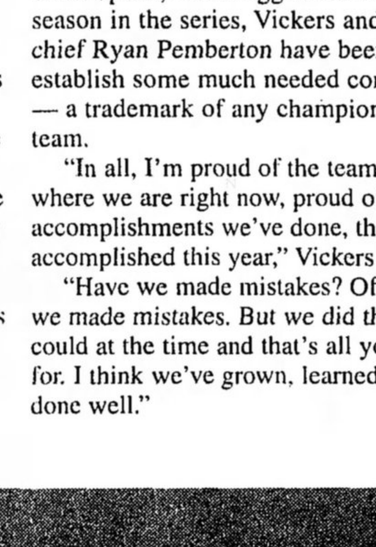
"It's so close. I don't know if it's been eight weeks, six weeks, four weeks, but it has been a while where the points have been so close from sixth to 14th, 15th, 16th," said Kahne, who earned his second Cup win of the season and 11th of his career.

"Something good happen early in the race at Richmond, you could lose a lot. We just need to keep working hard, communicating (and) doing things to make our car race good on Saturday night. That's key."

Kahne significantly improved his standing with the win, which came after a pass of then-leader Kevin Harvick with 11 of 325 laps remaining.

Kahne now has 20 bonus points from his wins which will help his seeding when the Chase field is set and his No. 9 Richard Petty Motorsports team appears to be gelling at just the right time of the season.

"This team has just stepped up," said Kahne, now sixth in the series standings. "The pit stops were awesome. The calls from (crew chief) Kenny Francis were perfect."



JASON SMITH FOR NASCAR

Kasey Kahne celebrates after winning the NASCAR Sprint Cup Series Pep Boys Auto 500 at Atlanta Motor Speedway on Sunday.

Team co-owner Richard Petty called Sunday night's win "a good start to the last part of the season."

"I guess you go into any season saying, 'OK, if we have a good year, we got a chance of winning a championship,' " Petty said.

"We've been up and down, bouncing around, got off to a bad start at Daytona then just kept plugging away. Maybe like some of the football teams or whatever, maybe we got off to a slow start."

Kahne remains the lone bright spot at RPM right now.

Teammates AJ Allemendinger (25th in points), Elliott Sadler (26th) and Reed Sorenson (28th) were long ago eliminated from the Chase. Combined those three drivers have two top-five and seven top-10 finishes this season.

While Kahne has been most consistent of the RPM teams, Petty said circumstances still played a role in the outcome. A late-race caution produced a restart with only 11 laps left and Harvick — who appeared well on his way to victory — was not good on short runs.

"No matter how you run or how good you run or how bad, there are circumstances beyond anybody's control," Petty said. "Circumstances fell our way on that last caution flag, and that put us in position for the pit crew to do their job and the drive to do his."

HOME TEAM IN CAPS

Charleroi has to work to beat B-C

Flament gets only goal in 1-0 victory.

Charleroi's second win in four days over Beth-Center Wednesday didn't come easy.

Playing their fifth game in six days, he Lady Cougars took a 1-0 decision in their Class AA Section 1 opener on Shannon Flament's goal in the 25th minute.

"I told the girls that this one would be tougher," said Charleroi coach Denver Byron. "We have a lot of room for improvement and the team knows it."

Charleroi (4-1, 1-0) resumes Monday at McGuffey.

Canon McMillan 8, Ringgold 1

"We ran into a buzz saw."

That was the reaction of Ringgold coach Tom Cameron following the Class AAA Section 5 opener.

"They may be the best team in the section," added Cameron. "We were defeated by a superior team tonight."

Angela Beck tallied Ringgold's goal. Taylor Schram had five goals for the Lady Macs (3-0, 1-0).

Ringgold (2-3, 0-1) hosts South Allegheny Saturday at 4 p.m.

St. Joseph 4, Monessen 1

Chontae Turner scored for the Lady Greyhounds in their Class AA Section 6 opener.

"We did some things well but we can improve," said Monessen coach Chris Duda. "St. Joseph is a very good team and hopefully we can improve from our mistakes."

Monessen (1-2, 0-1) goes to Carlynton Monday.

Chartiers Valley 5, Elizabeth Forward 0

The Lady Warriors (1-2) lost in their final tuneup before Monday's Class AAA Section 5 opener with Canon-McMillan.

"That is a very good team that has a nice mix of players," said Elizabeth coach Gary Myers. "Chartiers has nine seniors and a nice group of underclassmen. They can push in experience or young players coming up."

SPORTS HISTORY

30 Years Ago

The Pittsburgh Steelers opened the season with a 38-7 win over Houston with Terry Bradshaw throwing for 198 yards and two touchdowns and Sidney Thornton running for a pair of scores.

20 Years Ago

The Pittsburgh Steelers opened the season with a 51-0 loss at Three Rivers Stadium to Cleveland. The Browns were being coached for the first season by former Steeler assistant Bud Carson.

10 Years Ago

Ryan Marsich, John Eckert and Rob Maglicic scored goals in Charleroi's 3-1 win over Beth-Center.

Damien White scored for Ringgold in a 1-1 tie at McGuffey.

The Pittsburgh Pirates traded third baseman Freddy Garcia to Atlanta for 6-7 relief pitcher Greg Dukeman.

Pitt (FROM PAGE ONE)

walkthrough just because they're a MAC team," Pitt defensive lineman Gus Mustakas said. "I remember going into that Ohio game thinking that we'd win big. We lost to Notre Dame (the week before), and it was a tough game. But we thought Ohio would be no problem."

Last season's game against Buffalo, the MAC champions, should be reason enough for the Panthers (1-0) to be wary as they begin a stretch of three road games in four weeks.

Coach Dave Wannstedt's theme is "Don't take the cheese" — i.e., don't fall into the trap of thinking this is guaranteed win week.

"Our guys need to be aware of the environment they're going to be playing in," Wannstedt said. "We went on the road last year and played in front of some hostile crowds and we've handled it well. They know we're going to be going against a good team. The guys that were here last year know the game wasn't won until the fourth quarter."

Pitt was 5-1 on the road last season, losing only to Big East champion Cincinnati while winning at Notre Dame and South Florida.

The Panthers are coming off a 38-3 victory over non-major college opponent Youngstown State as freshman Dion Lewis ran for 129 yards, while Buffalo survived at UTEP, 23-17.

Buffalo has a less-experienced quarterback from a year ago as sophomore Zach Maynard will be making only his second career start. He replaces Drew Willy, a four-year starter.

"Some teams might want to overlook a MAC school, but we won't do it," Pitt tight end Nate Byham said. "And if we worry about our game and what we do, we should be all right against them."

Much like the Ohio-Pitt matchup in 2005, this game is a big deal in Buffalo, with coach Turner Gill calling it the biggest game the Bulls have played during his tenure.

"I feel like it's a game that could be a trap game for some teams, but not for us," Byham said.

Cubs' Zambrano finally gets a win

Chicago starter tops the Pirates for his first victory since July 22.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Carlos Zambrano ran into few problems against the Pittsburgh Pirates. Trying to get a seventh inning out of Chicago Cubs manager Lou Piniella is where his success ended.

Zambrano won for the first time since July 22 by limiting the slumping-again Pirates to two runs over six innings, and the Cubs finished off a three-game sweep by beating Pittsburgh 8-5 on Wednesday.

Playing before a sparse crowd that was announced at 10,899 but looked — and sounded — like it was much smaller, the Cubs won their sixth in a row against the Pirates, who completed a 1-5 homestand.

Micah Hoffpauir homered against former Cubs pitcher Kevin Hart (4-6), drove in two runs, scored three times and was among five Cubs batters with two hits. Chicago has won 26 of 32 from the Pirates.

The first two games of the series featured the Pirates setting a major league record on Monday by assuring themselves of a 17th consecutive losing season and the Cubs tying a record with eight successive hits to begin Tuesday night's game.

No streaks in this one — just a lively conversation as Piniella replaced Zambrano after the right-hander warmed up to start the seventh. When the Pirates brought up the left-handed hitting Ramon Vazquez, Piniella decided to bring in left-hander John Grabow.

Pirates catcher Jason Jaramillo, left, can't handle the throw from center fielder Andrew McCutchen as Chicago's Kosuke Fukudome scores from third on a sacrifice fly during the first inning Wednesday. Making the call is umpire Rob Drake.

The hard part for Piniella was telling Zambrano, who clearly didn't want to leave. Zambrano and Piniella had an animated talk on the mound that continued in the dugout.

"I wanted to pitch another inning but it's Lou's decision," said Zambrano, who struck out eight and gave up five hits. "You saw the replay, everybody thought I was arguing but we were just talking. Every time Lou talks it seems like he's mad, the way he moves his hands, but he's not. He's very professional."

Zambrano was sidelined recently for three weeks by back spasms, and Piniella was satisfied with his 98-pitch outing.

"Like I told him, let's get built (up), let's get you stronger and stronger," Piniella said. "That was the conversation on the mound. I told him, 'Next time if you want, we won't warm anybody up and we'll let you pitch nine innings.' "

Zambrano (8-6) was 0-2 in his previous five starts and hadn't won since beating the Phillies 10-5 on July 22. But he's usually good for a win against the Pirates, going 4-0 as the Cubs have won seven of his last eight starts against them. Zambrano is 7-1 in 13 career starts in PNC Park.

It may be too late to save the Cubs' season, but Zambrano still has time to get something out of a second half of the season he calls "horrible."

"Professionally, for me, it's been miserable," he said. "I think I only have to win. This is my first year I've been so poor in the second half. (I'm) just trying to finish the season strong."

Again, the Pirates (54-84) aren't. Now 30 games under .500, they are careening toward a fifth consecutive 90-loss season and their seventh since 2000. They have lost 12 of 13, the second time they've done that while going 9-26 since Aug. 2.

Hart, dealt to the Pirates by Chicago in the Tom Gorzelanny-John Grabow trade in July, walked six while giving up four runs and six hits in five innings. After going 3-1 with the Cubs, he is 1-5 in seven starts with Pittsburgh as he struggles to make mechanical adjustments between starts.

"I'm going to stay positive," Hart said. "I've gone through stretches like this before, in the minor leagues, and came out on top and I'm not going to let it beat me."

Helped by four walks by Hart, the Cubs scored solo runs in each of the first three innings. Koyie Hill added a two-run single in the seventh against Jeff Karstens.

The Cubs led 8-2 until the eighth, when former Cubs shortstop Ronny Cedeno hit a three-run homer off Kevin Gregg for his third hit.

Carlos Marmol pitched the ninth inning for his 11th save in 15 opportunities.

NOTES: Karstens, out since Aug. 25 with a lower back strain; was reinstated from the 15-day disabled list. .. Cubs LF Bobby Scales collided with a wall in foul territory trying to run down Brandon Moss' fly ball in the fifth, but stayed in the game. ... Pirates 2B Delwyn Young is hitless in 21 at-bats.

Grizzlies confirm signing Iverson

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — The Grizzlies confirmed they have agreed in principle to a contract with veteran guard Allen Iverson, hours after the guard tweeted he was heading to Memphis. The team scheduled a news conference today open to the public at FedExForum.

Grizzlies owner Michael Heisley wants Iverson to provide a big-name attraction for a team that struggled to attract fans to the plush FedExForum to watch a young team rebuilding through the draft.

Iverson, the first overall draft pick in 1996 and the league MVP in 2001, can provide valuable minutes and scoring off the bench needed by a franchise that went 24-58 and tied for the fifth-worst record in the NBA last season.

The 34-year-old free agent said on his Twitter feed that he met Monday with Heisley, general manager Chris Wallace and coach Lionel Hollins in Atlanta.

Steelers (FROM PAGE ONE)

White said. "If there's a towel in the stands, I will stomp on it. I don't care who gets mad. ... If they throw a towel at me, I'm going to kick it and stomp all over it. If they don't want their towel stomped on, keep it out of my face."

White's words weren't especially well-received in his own locker room — why agitate the champions, after all? Coach Jeff Fisher quickly moved to end such talk.

"It was something that took place in an emotional moment," Fisher said. "The players now understand ... the tradition behind the towel and the organization. They're certainly not going to carry their own towels out there and stomp on them before kickoff."

Steelers coach Mike Tomlin said he's got more important matters to worry about, such as making sure his players don't turn over the ball four times again.

"There's a lot of things that pump fans up that got nothing to do with playing and winning and losing," Tomlin said. "This is going to be two top-quality teams. They're going to play because it's opening night ... both teams need to get off to a great start. Those are going to be the things that motivate these teams."

Still, that didn't prevent offensive tackle Willie Colon from saying, "We'll talk about it (with the Titans) Thursday night."

Obviously, he's not expecting a Towel Tromp II.

He has been plagued by injured left hamstring. ... Parker averages 97.2 yards in September, with nine 100-yard games. ... Steelers return all but three starters from team that won second Super Bowl in four seasons. New starters are RG Trai Essex (replaces injured Darnell Stapleton), LB Lawrence Timmons (replaces Larry Foote, now with Lions) and CB William Gay (replaces Bryant McFadden, now with Cardinals). Timmons (high ankle sprain) isn't expected to play and would be replaced by Keyaron Fox. ... Steelers have won last six openers and their 38 wins in home openers lead the AFC. ... Steelers won nine of final 10 last season, counting playoffs, with only loss to Titans during next-to-last week. ... Steelers are 16-3, including playoffs, when S Troy Polamalu makes an interception. ... Steelers LB James Harrison, 2008 Defensive Player of the Year, is second in AFC with 24 1/2 sacks since 2007. Texans' Mario Williams has 26.

Given the NFL's yearly player turnover rate, this is about as close as two teams can come to a rematch from one season to the next. The Titans are missing only two starters, though the loss of All-Pro defensive tackle Albert Haynesworth could significantly weaken what was the NFL's No. 7 defense.

"It's important for us to get off to a good start," said defensive end Kyle Vanden Bosch, whose production was hurt by a groin injury. "There's no better way than to play against the team that had the best finish last season."

The Steelers return 19 of 22 starters, exceptional for a Super Bowl-winning team. Tomlin, however, has repeatedly taken steps to distance this team from last season's.

"Just because we won the Super Bowl last year don't mean nothing," defensive tackle Casey Hampton said. "To be at the top then doesn't mean anything because it's a whole new season."

REMEMBER when?

Monessen's Joe Como won the Mon Valley Conference scoring title in 1974 with 94 points.

Oudin ousted

NEW YORK (AP) — Melanie Oudin came to New York with a bag of rackets slung across her shoulder and a few modest goals.

She'll leave with a different kind of life.

Her run at the U.S. Open ended Wednesday, but not before the 17-year-old from Marietta, Ga., spun both a quintessentially American story that happened to be about tennis, and a compelling tennis story that happened to be about an American.

Not exactly rags to riches, but she certainly did make it big in the Big Apple.

"See, for me, I don't feel like a celebrity," she said. "But some people think I'm one now and I guess that's pretty cool."

She will not be remembered so much for being shut down, 6-2, 6-2 to ninth-seeded Caroline Wozniacki in the quarterfinals, as for the heart she showed in three come-from-behind victories that got her there.

From No. 70 in the world to the final eight at Flushing Meadows. From an under-the-radar life wherever she went to a world of jostling paparazzi, autograph signing and an endorsement-filled future.

Roger Federer has been dealing with it for years.

After the Oudin loss, top-ranked Federer played 12th-seeded Robin Soderling and found himself in a tougher tussle than he might have expected. He came out with a 6-0, 6-3, 6-7 (6), 7-6 (6) victory that extended his streak to 39 straight wins at the U.S. Open.

Wives find many ways to cool off hot husbands

DEAR ABBY: At the age of 72, having had two spouses over the years, I need to put in my two cents regarding the letter from "Still Hot and Bothered in Georgia" (July 8.)

I have learned that some women won't say "no!" to a husband's amorous advances, especially in the morning.

But they will try to distract him by scrubbing the tub, spotting a spider on the wall, feeding the cat or saying she forgot to fold the laundry and has to do it before it wrinkles.

Whether it's conscious or unconscious, they do it to cool their husbands off on a "hot" morning.

"Still Hot and Bothered" may need to give some thought to what turns his wife on or off — especially the timing.

Dear ABBY

After all, we are from Mars and they are from Venus. — ALEX IN BLUE BELL, PA.

DEAR ALEX: I agree that timing is important. My office was showered with responses from readers who were steamed over my response to that letter. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: The guys and I enjoy reading your column out loud to see if we agree or not with your advice. We were unanimous in our disagreement with your advice to "Still Hot and Bothered."

We would have been torqued if our wife had stayed in the shower to clean it instead of coming to bed for a good romp.

We also would have showered with our wife to start the festivities early and then moved to the bedroom.

Several of the guys said they'd have gotten into the shower and made the cleaning come to a halt.

There's a time for cleaning, and it's not when your husband is waiting with his motor running. — THE GUYS IN THE ELECTRIC LAB, HARRISONBURG, VA.

DEAR ABBY: I'm not against spontaneous cleaning (I do it myself), but the fact that the wife would rather clean than spend time with her husband tells me she's either unable to read his signals or she just doesn't care to be close and intimate with him. It also shows a lack of judgment, compassion and understanding on her part.

If the situation were reversed and he had decided he'd rather watch sports than be with his wife, I'm sure she would have been equally upset. I don't think the rules should be different for men and women in this regard. And yes, I am a woman. — HEATHER IN KANKAKEE, ILL.

DEAR ABBY: It appears that these days couples never have time for each other. Instead, they have their "individual" priorities before their "married" priorities.

When you compare the life expectancy of women vs. men, that woman will probably have years to clean the shower by herself without worrying about her mate. — KEN IN SULPHUR, LA.

DEAR ABBY: Men just don't get it! Women don't have on/off switches like men do. Atmosphere is very important for us. My husband enjoys "getting close" in the mornings, too — but I usually wake up with my to-do list running in my head. It is very difficult for me to get in the mood when there's work to be done.

Obviously, the wife in that letter wasn't ready to play. Instead of getting upset, her husband should have gotten creative and helped to set her mood. — BRENDA IN FORT WORTH

VALLEY CLUB NOTES

American Legion Auxiliary Unit 22

In opening the Charleroi American Legion Auxiliary Unit 22 August meeting, President Darlene McBurnie presented yellow roses of appreciation to past presidents Loni Stelma and Janet Jones, Secretary/Treasurer Doris Menia, and Unit Chaplain Sally Lundy for the great work they have done.

The national auxiliary theme for the 90th anniversary year is "Reconnect & Energize" an effort to increase communication. The goal is to increase involvement in veteran, youth, and community programs and communication is the key to growth.

Menia presented the minutes. The financial report was entered and filed for audit. A reminder was given that membership renewal began Aug. 1 and dues are now being accepted.

Chairman Janet Jones shared the progress of the overseas coupon program and thanked everyone for clipping coupons. She encouraged them to continue saving beverage can pull tabs for the Pittsburgh Ronald McDonald House project.

Barb Springer reminded members about the food sales 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. the second Wednesday of each month beginning to benefit the auxiliary Christmas party. Menus are posted on the board.

The group will be making "Deployment Bags" for troops going out of the 171st Air Refueling Wing in Coraopolis. Details will be provided at the Sept. 28 meeting following the installation of officers by District President Carol Randolph.

The unit hopes to sponsor Girl Scout Troup 54036 and is awaiting final confirmation from them.

Lundy said she began enclosing "poppies" in sympathy cards sent to members and now takes home all prayer requests left in her box to pray over until new requests are received at the next meeting. She closed with a prayer of benediction.

Beta Sigma Phi

The Pennsylvania Alpha Phi Master Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi gathered at the home of Micki Campana on Sept. 4 to open the 2009-2010 season. Julie Wisyanski served as hostess.

President Jackie Taylor called the meeting to order. Alice Selcan led the opening ritual.

Beverly Mascetta read prior meeting minutes. Wisyanski presented the treasurer's report. The chapter discussed service projects for this season.

Participants thanked Ron and Micki Campana for serving as hosts for the summer picnic at their home.

Taylor acknowledged members' birthdays and impending birthdays for the year.

Taylor sent a thank-you card for the gift certificate she received from the group for her services and dedication to the chapter. She presented officers Campana, Mascetta and Wisyanski with chocolates in appreciation for their assistance during the past term. Mascetta, yearbook chairwoman, distributed 2009-2010 yearbooks. Taylor reviewed them with members and announced the annual theme: "Share Our Passport to Adventure."

Arrangements are being made for Faith Wallace to receive her silver circle pin and certification. Mascetta won a variegated, multi-colored garden mum.

The next meeting will be Oct. 7 under the direction of Faith Wallace.

The program consisted of information on "Moles and Marks to Watch For."

Charity drive a mad dash in roadster

NEEDLES, Calif. (AP) – Friends told him it couldn't be done. His wife said he was crazy.

But neither is stopping 59-year-old Dave Schaub of Los Gatos, Calif., from embarking on the ultimate charity drive – a cross-country road trip that he expects to take him to 49 states in nine days behind the wheel of a 1932 Ford roadster.

Schaub, an ex-Army drill instructor, already raised more than $70,000 for Ronald McDonald House at Stanford, which puts up families of children receiving medical care at local hospitals. He is asking people to donate a penny for every mile he drives and sold advertising space on his car.

Schaub planned to take off from Needles, Calif., early Wednesday. He estimates that he can cover about 1,100 miles a day traveling at an average speed of 62 mph for 16 to 18 hours. At that pace, he should reach Hyder, Alaska, on Sept. 17.

Memorial service honors Cronkite

Obama, Clinton join celebrities in remembering the late CBS newsman.

By DAVID BAUDER
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK — Former President Bill Clinton remembered Walter Cronkite as "a great citizen and a profoundly good human being" during a memorial service Wednesday for the legendary newsman.

Clinton saluted Cronkite for "an inquiring mind and a caring heart and a careful devotion to the facts."

After watching Cronkite as a youngster, Clinton grew to be friends with him in adulthood, "and I just ended up being crazy about the guy."

Others scheduled to appear included former Cronkite colleagues at CBS News, musicians Wynton Marsalis and Mickey Hart, and President Barack Obama.

Jimmy Buffett sang his classic "Son of a Son of a Sailor" for his sailing buddy Cronkite.

But before that, he had a warm recollection of seeking some advice for a mutual friend, the late "60 Minutes" correspondent Ed Bradley.

Associated Press

Entertainer Jimmy Buffett performs Wednesday at a memorial service for Walter Cronkite.

After a sail, "the sun was down, the rum was out, and I said, 'Walter, Ed called me and he's thinking about wearing an earring on '60 Minutes.'"

Buffett said Cronkite responded: "It doesn't matter if he wears an earring, as long as it's a good story." Then Cronkite added impishly: "If I was going to wear an earring on '60 Minutes,' I'd wear one of those big, long dangly ones."

Cronkite, who died July 17 at 92, anchored "The CBS Evening News" from 1962 until 1981. He came to be known as "the most trusted man in America."

Former NBC anchor Tom Brokaw called him "a seminal force in the transformation of this country."

Brokaw, who grew up in South Dakota, said, "Walter Cronkite and all those early (TV news) pioneers lifted a lamp and showed us the wider world and allowed us to understand it more clearly and coherently."

Katie Couric, who now sits at the "CBS Evening News" anchor desk, noted that lesser men are sometimes idealized at their passing.

"But this passing has required no selective recollections or hyperbole," Couric said. "It's been a pure joy to celebrate and remember Walter Cronkite for the way he really was.

Astronaut Buzz Aldrin, who in 1969 made his historic Apollo 11 moonwalk with Neil Armstrong, spoke of Cronkite's passionate interest in covering the U.S. space program. He praised Cronkite's "belief in science, his dedication to the story, and his commanding presence that made every step in space exciting for Americans of every age."

Among those attending the service, at Manhattan's Lincoln Center, were former CBS anchor Dan Rather; ABC's Charles Gibson, Diane Sawyer, Barbara Walters and Bob Woodruff; and NBC's Brian Williams.

DeGeneres new 'American Idol' judge

Popular talk show host will fill the spot vacated by Paula Abdul.

By DERRIK J. LANG
AP Entertainment Writer

LOS ANGELES — Ellen DeGeneres is dancing her way into the fourth judge's seat on "Idol."

Fox announced Wednesday the talk show host and comedian, who admittedly has no formal music experience, just a passion for tunes, will join Simon Cowell, Randy Jackson and Kara DioGuardi for the ninth season. The announcement all but seals the departure of Paula Abdul, the original third judge who announced she was quitting amid a contract dispute in July.

Wednesday's announcement came as a shock to many of the singing competition's fans, who did not expect the Emmy-winning talk show host to fill Abdul's spot. DeGeneres told her talk show audience in an episode scheduled to air Thursday that she had been "dying to tell everyone" and would not abandon her chatfest. Instead, she will have "a day job and a night job."

Ellen DeGeneres was announced Wednesday as the fourth judge for "American Idol."

Associated Press

"The times we're living in," she quipped, "we're all doing that."

Abdul had been replaced by a succession of guest judges across the country as "Idol" started next season's auditions, which will air in January. Among them: Victoria Beckham, Mary J. Blige, Joe Jonas, Neil Patrick Harris, Katy Perry and Shania Twain — but not the 51-year-old DeGeneres, who will join the ninth season following the show's tryout rounds.

"Hopefully, I'm the people's point of view because I'm just like you," DeGeneres said on her talk show. "I sit at home and I watch it, and I don't have that technical ... I'm not looking at it in a critical way from the producer's mind. I'm looking at it as a person who is going to buy the music and is going to relate to that person."

It won't be DeGeneres' first time in a reality TV judge's seat — or on "Idol." She served as a guest judge earlier this summer on "So You Think You Can Dance," critiquing the dancing competition's top eight finalists. In 2007, she was the co-host of "Idol Gives Back," the singing contest's charity event. She returned the next year in a pre-taped segment.

DeGeneres' has enjoyed a successful reign as the host of "The Ellen DeGeneres Show" for the past six years, although her four-year streak as the talk show host Daytime Emmy winner ended this year when Whoopi Goldberg, Joy Behar, Elisabeth Hasselbeck, Sherri Shepherd and Barbara Walters from ABC's "The View" were awarded the prize for the first time.

"Beyond her incredible sense of humor and love of music, she brings with her an immense warmth and compassion that is almost palpable," said "Idol" executive producer and FremantleMedia North America CEO Cecile Frot-Coutaz in a statement. "She is one of America's foremost entertainers, and we cannot wait to have her join our team."

With the four judges' seats now filled, it's highly unlikely Abdul will return to her post on "Idol." Known for her sugary sweet but often obscure evaluations, Abdul had served as judge alongside Cowell and Jackson since the show's debut in 2002. Producers attempted to shake up the franchise last season by adding songwriter DioGuardi as a fourth judge.

Since departing "Idol," Abdul has gone diva, filming a cameo for Lifetime's "Drop Dead Diva" as a gavel-banging, glammed-up version of herself and signing on to host the live "VH1 Divas" concert Sept. 17. Abdul has yet to announce a steady job to replace her role on the Fox singing contest, but she told TV Guide last week she'd like to host a talk show.

Kennedy Center honorees named

By SARAH KARUSH
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Dave Brubeck just wishes his mom could see him now: On Dec. 6, the same day the jazz composer and pianist turns 89, he'll be among the leading artists feted at the 32nd Kennedy Center Honors Gala.

Dignitaries from President Barack Obama on down will celebrate Brubeck's career, along with those of singer Bruce Springsteen, actor Robert De Niro, comic genius Mel Brooks and opera singer Grace Bumbry, the Kennedy Center announced Wednesday.

Brubeck says it's a day that would have delighted his late mother, Elizabeth Ivey Brubeck, a classical pianist who was initially disappointed by her son's interest in jazz. He recalled that when he graduated high school in 1938, his mother wrote in her diary: "I think there is some hope for David after all."

"Both my older brothers were such terrific musicians — classical musicians. And she wanted three sons that would follow in her footsteps ..., and I let her down," Brubeck said in a phone interview from Seattle, where he was touring this week. "She finally came around to what I was doing. She lived long enough to see good results, and she enjoyed going to the concerts."

Obama and the first lady will host the 2009 honorees at the White House before attending the gala with them at the Kennedy Center. Brubeck said he is looking forward to meeting the president, who wrote of going to a Brubeck concert as a child in his memoir "Dreams From My Father."

As usual, the gala will be recorded for broadcast as a two-hour prime-time special on CBS. This year's will air on Dec. 29 at 9 p.m.

The Kennedy Center Honors recognize performing artists for their contributions to American culture.

Brubeck is credited with helping take jazz into the mainstream, and his band popularized music that departed from the traditional 4/4 rhythm.

Brubeck

"Time Out" — the classic album by the Dave Brubeck Quartet featuring the hit "Take Five" in 5/4 time— turned 50 this year. Brubeck has set to music the words of the Old Testament and of Martin Luther King Jr. and, most recently, the photographs of Ansel Adams.

As for the other honorees, Springsteen and De Niro belonged to the category of potential honorees that George Stevens Jr., the creator and producer of the honors show, calls "not if, but when."

Mel Brooks, 83, is a former standup comedian who made his mark on television with the classic 2000-year-old man routine with Carl Reiner. He soon moved to the big screen, where his hit comedies include "The Producers" and "Blazing Saddles."

VIRGO

August 23 through September 22

Greater responsibilities in your chosen field of endeavor might fall on your shoulders in the year ahead. However, if you assume them willingly and do a good job, you will be acknowledged and rewarded handsomely.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) -- You will suffer a few frustrations at work, but if you remain calm and keep working toward your goal, you will attain exactly what you want.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) -- Through sheer grit and lots of patience, you will be able to take on an extremely intimidating situation. Confidence in your abilities will help you to succeed.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) -- When you are motivated to succeed on behalf of those you love, you will do exceptionally well. You won't have trouble setting aside any self-serving desires.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) -- Today has much more to offer than some signals might indicate, owing to the people in your sphere. Good relationships will relegate troubling aspects to the backburners.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) -- Although there might be a few troubling spots, conditions in general look extremely favorable with regard to your material affairs. The good outweighs the bad.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) -- Today might be one of those times when you must prime the pump in order to get things flowing. Put your money on that which you believe, and it'll go to work for you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) -- Allow events to occur at their own pace and in their own time. Any interference on your part could throw everything off schedule and prove to be self-defeating. Go with the flow.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) -- Take advantage of the opportunities to meet and mingle with new people in both your social and business lives. Constructive new relationships can be established.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) -- You're likely to encounter some people working for you and others working against you. It shouldn't be any trouble dealing with friendly types, but you must be prepared for the unfriendly ones.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) -- By looking out for others, it will set the tone for cooperative exchanges with even the unfriendly types. Be nonjudgmental, regardless of what you encounter, and you'll keep things running smoothly.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) -- An important and troubling situation will work out far better than you could anticipate as long as you don't rock the boat. Relax and let things unfold their way.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) -- If you partner with someone who thinks the same way, you will pull off something big. Be prepared to bite your tongue and cooperate.
